

Acknowledgements

I would first like to thank my three advisors, Steven Wilkinson, Sheridan Johns, and Joseph Grieco, for all of their input and assistance in the creation of this honors thesis. Their combined knowledge of political science, ethnic conflict, and African political history has helped me complete what first seemed a daunting project. In addition, I would like to acknowledge the support given to me by my family, all of whom offered an ear or a pen, and my friends who provided levity throughout the long period of research and the longer period of writing. Finally, Kathleen, who encouraged me to do my best and listened all the way. Thank you all very much for making this the best experience possible.
